storytelling is important

Metropolarity wants you to remember, there are other worlds than these.

As kids, as adults, as time travelers, cyborgs, aliens, and magic users - we create tall tales and whole worlds to narrate the realities we envision.

but who gets to tell the stories?

Stories use words, images, sound, and movement, to carry information. About our histories, our visions, our ancestors, our desires, our fears, our mistakes, our hopes for the future.

But we live in a time where things more powerful than words shape our lives. Things like advertisements & money ...

YOUR WEAPONS OF PERCEPTION

They shape the world ignoring our stories and trick us to only listen to suggestions.

Do you remember the last time you saw/heard/read a message that made you feel powerful? Understood? Loved? Listened to? Celebrated?

Do you remember the last time you saw/heard/read about a place you wanted to be? A future world that included YOU? A tale of the past that did not forget? A present that spoke the truth? we do.
